

TREATY INVOLVING THREE POWERS MAY MEET WITH FAVOR

No Serious Opposition Looked
For in The U. S.
Senate

SOME CRITICISM HEARD

Hoover Satisfied With Result,
Although Not Just As
Was Expected

By George R. Holmes
U. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Apr. 12.—The three-power naval limitation treaty evolved at London after so many weeks of prodigious effort will not meet with serious opposition in the Senate, it appeared today.

There will be considerable criticism that the conference failed to achieve some of its major objectives, notably a five-power agreement and the degree of reduction anticipated after the Hoover-MacDonald conferences here in October, but the absence of any political involvement accompanying the naval treaty is expected to make the whole thing more palatable to the Senate.

President Hoover is satisfied with the results, although they failed to come quite up to his expectations. He considers that naval competition is virtually ended by the tri-partite agreement covering all categories of vessels.

The scrapping of a few old battle-ships and the non-replacement of others for the life of the treaty, six years, permits both President Hoover and Premier MacDonald to go to their respective peoples with the claims of "real reduction" and the potential saving of millions of dollars in new construction.

Whether these claims can be made to stand up, however, depends entirely on the French.

In his lengthy review of the accomplishments at London, President Hoover did not mention the contingency clause which the three-power treaty between Great Britain, the United States and Japan will contain. That clause, insisted upon by the British admiralty from the start, will permit the British, and, of course, the United States since parity is to be maintained, to increase construction commensurately with the French.

If the French, who refused to come into the agreement, now proceed with the construction of a 724,000-ton navy, as Premier Tardieu has stated they would, then the figures to be contained in the three-power treaty automatically become liable to revision—upward.

Thus, in the final analysis, it all comes back to the French, where the real problem has existed all the time. If France proceeds with her large building program, then Britain increases commensurately, and the United States must follow suit if parity is to be maintained. Thus the treaty is elastic, instead of fixed.

In the main, however, President Hoover is satisfied that the conference achieved everything possible, in view of the complicated politics of Europe.

POTTSVILLE, Apr. 12.—(INS)—Another famous old hostelry is to go the way of fleeting fame and soon will be among the memories of the "older generation," with the tearing down of the Mount Carbon Mansion House at Mount Carbon, near here.

In its heyday, the old mansion entertained under its roof such distinguished guests as President U. S. Grant, the Prince of Wales, prominent men from almost every country on the globe, and leaders of business throughout the United States.

The Old Mansion grew to fame in the pioneer days of anthracite coal mining in Pennsylvania. It was situated on the edge of the "Pottsville Conglomerate," marking the southern limit of the anthracite region.

CAVEAT WITHDRAWN IN MERCER ESTATE

Wealthy Brother Decides Not To Contest Will of Deceased

DISTRIBUTE PROPERTY

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 12.—The distribution of an estate of $1,000,000, the major portion of which was given to the public in the will of the late Dr. Henry Chapman Mercer, internationally famous scientist who died at his home here, Fonthill, in March, will not be withheld any longer.

A caveat filed against the probate of his will by his wealthy brother, William R. Mercer, of Aldie, this borough, was withdrawn yesterday by him.

In a recent hearing in the will contest it was revealed by the well known author and novelist, Owen Wister, of Bryn Mawr, that the two brothers had not been on speaking terms for more than five years. Dr. Mercer became angry at his brother when he tore down the old Mercer homestead on the Aldie estate and never became reconciled.

In the original will Dr. Mercer left the residue of his estate to his brother, William, estimated at $300,000. When the old homestead was razed and a $200,000 mansion erected nearby, Dr. Mercer made a codicil to his will revoking the brother's bequest and gave the residue of the estate to the Bucks County Historical Society at Doylestown for maintenance of the world-famous Mercer museum.

A caveat was filed against the will and codicil on the ground that Dr. Mercer was mentally impaired in health at the time and was not capable of executing a will or codicil. As a result the entire estate and the public bequests were threatened.

Today the brother through a public announcement withdrew the caveat and the will will be entered to probate immediately.

"I have been informed by my attorneys that the income of the Bucks County Historical Society without the residuary legacy would not suffice for any future expansion or extension which might be contemplated by the trustees," Mr. Mercer announced.

"This information throws an entirely new light on the subject, and in view of the publicity occasioned by my caveat I have no desire to impede the progress of an institution which is a fitting memorial to my brother and a valuable acquisition to our country. For these reasons I have instructed my attorneys to withdraw the caveat and stop further proceedings."

Mr. Mercer said he filed the caveat originally because of "the unaccountable attitude of his brother toward him in the last years of his life, which was extremely painful to him."

Among the two outstanding bequests to the public is Fonthill, the former Mercer castle, given to the public for a museum, and the Mercer Museum, Doylestown, which is visited annually by 15,000 persons from all parts of the world.

Frank K. Swain, who came to Dr. Mercer as a penniless youth thirty years ago and later became manager of his Moravian Pottery and Tile Works here, is bequeathed $100,000 and the tile works under the provision of the will to be probated today in the Register's office here.

HANOVER, Pa., April 12.—(INS)—The passing of an ancient and an honorable craft is recalled here with the death recently of Andrew B. Heathcote, "Granddaddy of Harness Makers," who died here recently at the age of eighty-seven and on-half years.

Everyone in Glen Rock, the village near here where he made his home, and almost everyone in the county knew him as "Poppy" Heathcote.

"Poppy" practiced the art of harness making for 65 years and had retired at the age of 85, in 1928.

BOY SCOUTS IN COUNTY WILL HOLD MUTT SHOWS

To Be Lad's Contribution To Educational Department of S. P. C. A.

REWARDS TO BE GIVEN

Early in May Bucks County Boy Scouts will hold a series of mutt shows, in the county. This will be a contribution from the Boy Scouts to the educational department of the S. P. C. A., with which they have been cooperating for some time.

These mutt shows should prove of interest to every girl and boy (and adult too) who owns a plain dog, which does not boast a pedigree, or descent from any particular breed of ancestor. They are a regular feature of some of the larger S. P. C. A.'s programs, the Pennsylvania Society of Philadelphia, giving a series of such shows annually. And they have proved very popular with grown-ups as well as the children.

Rewards will be given in the various classes of mutts entered in the shows, and these rewards, it is promised, will be both acceptable to the owners of the mutts winning them, and useful to the mutts themselves.

These shows will be held in Bristol, Morrisville, Langhorne, Doylestown, Quakertown and Southampton. Here will be an opportunity for everybody owning a plain dog to enter him (or her) in their local show. "Every dog has his day" applies to the mutt as well as to the aristocrat in dogdom, and histories of canine life prove beyond a doubt the real worth of such dogs, for their fidelity and intelligence.

So here will be the mutt's chance to show himself, and to display to an admiring public, and other canines as well, his education, his beauty, and his right to enter a real dog show, even though he may not have one drop of "blue blood" in his veins.

It is hoped that girls and boys, and grown-ups too, will get their dogs into good condition and ready to compete in the S. P. C. A.-Boy Scout mutt shows in May.

prayer, Clarence Smith; "Lead, Kindly Kind," audience; notices and offering; vocal duet, Mildred Dyer and Roberta Pearson; sermon, "The Candle," Carl Foell; cornet duet, George Talbot and Thomas Argust, Jr.; hymn, audience; "Jesus Bids Us Shine," Mary Muffett.

Rev. Paul R. Ronge, pastor of the Zion Lutheran Church, announces the following services for tomorrow: Sunday School and Bible class, 10 a. m.; morning worship, 11, sermon, "Jesus Comes to Town," palms being distributed at this service, and anthem by the choir; evening worship, 7:45, with the Hope Circle, giving a pageant, "The Garden of Joseph of Arimathea."

There will be holy week services every evening at 7:45, with readings in the booklet, "His Last Week." This set's famous pictures of Christ will be used in illustrating the readings. The pageant will be repeated Tuesday. There will be celebration of the Lord's supper on Holy Thursday, and the Bidding prayer and watching by the cross on Friday.

WIFE UNDER BAIL; STABBED HUSBAND; HE EXONERATES HER

Mrs. Maurice McIlvaine Released in $1,000 Bail After Brief Hearing

RESULT OF ARGUMENT

Husband Tells Police Chief
That He is To Blame
For the Affair

Mary McIlvaine, 22, 912 Wood street, was placed on trial last night before Justice Guy charged with stabbing her husband, Maurice, 26, with a knife.

Mrs. McIlvaine was at the trial but was not represented by counsel. She did not testify. Chief of Police Linford Jones was the only witness. After the taking of the testimony the woman was admitted to $1,000 bail to await the outcome of the injuries to her husband.

Chief Jones testified that at six o'clock Thursday evening he went to the hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner and there found Maurice McIlvaine suffering with a stab wound. "He told me that it had occurred while he and his wife were engaged in an argument at their home 912 Wood street. He said that it was his own fault," testified the chief.

At this point bail was presented for the defendant and the bail piece signed.

Mrs. McIlvaine was placed under arrest yesterday afternoon. She admitted to the police that she had stabbed her husband during an argument and made no effort to conceal the fact. Apparently it was an accidental affair.

The instrument penetrated the left side of McIlvaine and went in about five inches. His lung was punctured but the man's condition is not thought to be serious.

While details of the case are not a matter of public record it is intimated that McIlvaine ran against the knife and that this gave the instrument the force necessary to cut through his clothing and enter his body.

After the stabbing McIlvaine ran to the home of his mother at 310 Lafayette street.

Between 50 and 60 men of the Bible classes of the Bristol churches met in the Methodist Church here last evening and after a program of entertainment discussed the organization of the United Bible Classes of Bristol. It is the purpose of the movement to extend the Christian work among the men of Bristol and in the fall to revive the holding of a series of meetings for men each Sunday afternoon and to procure speakers of national note.

Thomas S. Harper was made temporary chairman and James S. Douglas temporary secretary of the meeting. A nominating committee was named to select officers whose names will be presented at the next meeting to be held at the committee's call in the Presbyterian Church.

The pastors of five Bristol churches were named as a committee to immediately start negotiating for the services of Tom Noonan, the famous evangelist.

At the meeting held last night the Rev. John B. Cole, of the Bible Institute of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, gave a very interesting talk to the men. There were vocal solos by Andrew MacArthur and Howard Coombs. They were accompanied by Mrs. Alfred Rodgers, Floyd Hunt was the pianist of the evening.

"BILLY" SUNDAY AT SOUTH LANGHORNE GETS 30 CONVERTS

World Renowned Evangelist
Preaches Twice in Oaklihurst Chapel

APPEARED TO BE TIRED

Utters Striking Phrases and Pounds Home Truths
With Fist

(By Staff Correspondent)

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Apr. 12.—"If you're in a business that religion hurts, you're in a rotten business," says "Billy" Sunday, and this was one of the epithets hurled by the famed evangelist here last evening, at those who persist in doing business in an illegitimate manner.

Sunday, the world-famed evangelist, the preacher who has swayed millions and whose preaching has moved the hearts of thousands to such an extent that they have professed openly their faith in Christ and hit the sawdust trail, conducted two services here yesterday. He spoke to about 250 people in the afternoon and last night the Oaklithurst Chapel was filled to capacity with over 500 people.

It was perhaps the first time that Sunday has ever gone into such a small community to conduct two services. He did not do it for money as was stated at the afternoon meeting. "He came here because he believes in the work which you folks here are doing and he endorses the things for which this chapel and this community stand," it was stated at the initial service.

At both services it was explained that the free-will offering would go to the evangelist.

Sunday did not appear to be in good form. He said that he was tired and he looked it. He appeared to be nervous and the shuffling of feet, the mumbling of children irritated him. The audiences were requested not to cough aloud and to keep as quiet as possible. The evangelist had all the appearances of a man who was suffering from overwork and whose nerves were "on edge."

He was more forceful at the evening meeting than he was during the afternoon. His audience in the afternoon just about half filled the chapel, while that at the evening jammed it. The atmosphere at the evening service was far more conducive to good preaching than that of the afternoon. "America is going to hell in car-load lots at excursion rates," the evangelist shouted at the afternoon meeting as he drove his fist down for emphasis.

Sunday wore his famous blue serge suit, green tie with a pearl pin, the gift, he said, of ex-Judge Sanford, of the U. S. Supreme Court.

"It doesn't make any difference if you are a bad millionaire broker, or a cellar craps-shooter," he added, "you're in rotten business if religion harms it."

The inimitable, traveling preacher, who has swayed thousands upon thousands in his messages in every state in the union, then referred to his own work. Telling of representatives of a motion picture syndicate who traveled from New York to Indiana to offer him a check for $50,000, with a guarantee of $1,000,000 a year on a proposed contract for making talks, Mr. Sunday repeated his reply: "You didn't give me my reputation. God gave it to me, and it isn't for sale." "I'm working to save souls," he added.

The text taken by the well-known evangelist for the evening meeting was "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" His advice was "You move first. Accept God as your Saviour, and He'll do the rest. You say the church is full of hypocrites. So's Hell. There won't be any hypocrites in Heaven. They'll be ex-hypocrites. They'll all be ex-something in Heaven, or they wouldn't be there."

Agriculture, the sciences, modern medicines were used as examples by the great Sunday to drive his message home. "When the farmer plants his grain there is a law that helps that grain to grow—a law that the farmer does not originate or understand or control. Plant God's seed of love in your hearts and He'll do the rest. You don't have to understand the intricate method, for none of us will until we

DEMAND FOR ART

Europe's superiority complex and condescending attitude toward America and Americans have been largely due to her belief it has amounted to a religion with her—that the liking of the average American for making money and owning strings of automobiles and luxurious yachts exceeded his love of art. Europeans must now desert that way of thinking.

Art in the United States has become "big business." Last year, despite Wall Street's vicissitudes and downs, Americans spent $250,000,000 for works of art.

While the report of the American Art Dealers Association lists large sums spent by museums and collectors, it leaves a most notable total credited to smaller purchasers. Art has ceased to be esoteric in the United States, a change which conclusively refutes the European charge. So while Europe continues to think of Americans only as owners of electric washing machines and foreign bonds, there is no denying that the real American's home often contains art of a quality unknown abroad except in castles and museums.

Another significant and art encouraging feature of the 1929 report on art sales is the tabulation showing that only one-third of the total sales were of old masters and that $25,000,000 worth of prints and etchings were sold, a large share of them to individuals. Here is proof that these young living artists are winning appreciation.

THE GREAT QUESTIONNAIRE

There was a time when the decennial census-taking was a solemn ceremony with the entire nation alert and somewhat anxious over the coming of the enumerators and announcement of the population figures. This generation takes the whole business as commonplace and all a part of the day's questioning.

This change of public attitude is not difficult to explain. War drives, community fund drives, local census surveys and a thousand and one questionnaires have combined to make the household apathetic. They are now taken as a matter of course along with other petty annoyances heralded by the doorbell. So the visits of the census enumerators bring no thrills this year.

From this it must not be presumed that the public has lost its old appreciation of the importance of an accurate and complete census. Answers to the questions are being given freely and frankly in the universal knowledge that the information is needed by Uncle Sam.

While the number of questions is imposing none is impudent, impertinent or trivial. From the answers the government and business will extract information that will aid them in making this a better country in which to live and work.

Sometimes a man gets so mad he quits being a hypocrite for a few brief minutes.

Due to the efforts of a government bureau, the number of types of wheelbarrows now available for wheeling on the day after election has been condensed to 22.

Services for Sunday, Palm Sunday, at St. James's Church:

8 a. m., holy communion; 9.30 a. m., church school; 10.45 a. m., holy communion and sermon; 7.15, evening prayer and sermon.

Palms will be distributed at all services. At the evening service, the members of Lily Rebecca Lodge will attend in a body, and the rector will preach a special sermon.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet on Monday, with Mrs. Hunsicker leading the mission study class. The quarterly collection of the "blue boxes" is due, and the treasurer, Miss M. Hughes, will be grateful if all those having "blue boxes" will make their returns to her as soon as possible.

The confirmation lecture will be given on Monday evening at the church, the subject being the holy communion. On Good Friday, there will be a three-hour service conducted at the church from 12 to 3. This service is arranged so that anyone may go in whenever they can and leave whenever they must. Many business houses will close between these hours on Good Friday and the rector hopes everyone will avail themselves of this service. There will also be evening prayer and sermon on Good Friday at 8.

Any sick or aged who will be unable to get to the church on Easter for communion will be given communion in their homes if they will notify the rector.

Remember the Mothers' Guild annual supper, April 26th, at the parish house.

Humane Week Will Be Observed in County school exercises by giving a series of kindness to animals demonstrations, some day in the week. Boy Scouts have for some time been cooperating with this department of the S. P. C. A.

Large decorative posters, especially prepared for use in Humane Week will be distributed in schools and other suitable places, and a number of Girl Scout troops have agreed to assist by giving a "kindness play" for this season of kindness.

Ministers in the county have been requested to not forget Humane Sunday, April 27th, and if a sermon cannot be preached on that day that is specially adapted to the anniversary, it is asked that some mention be made in church and Sunday School of our great debt to the animals, upon which we depend for so many of our necessities, and luxuries.

A poster contest, recently held in the county schools, has closed with 571 posters sent in—each illustrating some idea of kindness to animals. First prizes will be $5 gold pieces, and will be presented during Humane Week, to Margaret Gilmour, Morrisville High; Beatrice Denison, New Hope, and Betty Decker, New Hope. Second prizes of animal stories by Ernest Thompson Seton will be given to W. R. Roesechen, Bensalem High; Laura Walton, New Hope, and Geraldine Glenn, Croydon primary, will receive a set of story books suitable for her age. Special prizes will be given to Rudolph Greenberg, Carversville grammar, and Mary McNamara, first grade, New Hope—these are for the splendid effort made by these pupils.

Pupils of the county schools have been asked to place bird houses which they have built on display at the Court House, Doylestown, in Humane Week. Any teacher wishing to have bird houses so displayed, and having no means of transporting them, should write to the field secretary of Bucks County S. P. C. A., Mrs. Fannie B. Hildon, at Solebury, as soon as possible.

"Billy" Sunday at South Langhorne Gets 30 Converts

more I have the same wife I started with 41 years ago, and that's going some in these days."

The evening message was marked with much enthusiasm both on the part of the speaker and the congregation, although the evangelist showed the fatigue he expressed. He has but recently completed a lengthy campaign in Philadelphia. His next place for services is to be Mt. Holly, N. J.

For one hour and ten minutes did the preacher of great fame tell of the Christian life, telling how he prized it. Occasionally when a chair could be readily used to illustrate some point he wished to drive home, he would bring one to the fore from the rear of the pulpit. This piece of furniture also served as a means of elevation when Sunday wished to have a better view of his hearers. Occasionally the elevation of his foot or an unusual facial expression would suit his purpose better, as well as convey to men, women and children present a certain thought he wished to impress upon them.

At the conclusion of the evening meeting over 30 answered his appeal for converts, going to the front and clasping his hands. At the conclusion of the sermon many also gathered at the front of the edifice to greet the evangelist.

Sunday took as the topic for his afternoon sermon the Twenty-third Psalm.

"America is going to hell in car-load lots at excursion rates," shouted Sunday as he dwelt upon the value which today is placed upon the material things of life.

"America is money drunk," was another striking phrase used by the speaker as he continued to pound the pulpit to loud emphasis to his remarks. "I am sick and disgusted with the way people treat Jesus Christ, after all that He has done for them," he said.

"People don't go to church and don't pay their moral debts," was another comment.

Sunday, previous to being introduced showed evidences of being nervous and worn out. He walked back and forth across the platform during the preliminary part of the program. Before speaking the audience was requested not to mill about, nor to cough, and if babies became restless their parents were requested to take them out for fresh air.

Several times during Sunday's preaching he apparently was disturbed by the shuffling of children's feet and other noises. He paused frequently and kept quiet until the annoying sounds ceased.

Sunday said that he was one-third Pennsylvanian. His father was a native of this state, his mother was born in the Hoosier state, and Sunday himself was born in Iowa.

While in South Langhorne Mr. Sunday was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Oakley, leaving this morning for the New Jersey town.

An orchestra assisted with the musical numbers; and two vocal solos were much enjoyed, one by Miss Oakley, with harpophone accompaniment; and another by Mrs. C. D. Oakley.

LUCKY

One of our friends said the other day, "You're lucky you're not overloaded with used cars." We are not lucky, it's just the fact that the cars we trade in we are able to offer for resale at prices which turn them right over. Our stock is not large but we may have a car here that will suit you, and if we do it will be at a price that will make you buy. Stop in and see us first. We will finance you.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE WILL USE SAME TWO UMPIRES

At a meeting of the Bristol Twilight held last night in the office of D. Landreth Seed Company, it was decided to use the same official umpires and scorekeepers as in the past season.

The official umpires are Joseph Riola and John Elmer. Thomas Juno and Francis Ellis are the League's scorekeepers.

The Rules and Regulations Committee submitted their report and several rules were revised and several added.

In the absence of President Dave Landreth, Vice-President Thomas Juno presided.

Next meeting will be held next Friday night at 8.30 p. m.

Croydon Boys' Club will pry off the lid of their baseball season on their home grounds tomorrow afternoon when they clash with the strong 47th Ward team of Philadelphia.

The Croydon boys have been practicing regularly and hope to begin the season with a good start.

They have also been made a member of the Bristol Twilight League and expect to grab some honors of the circuit.

For tomorrow's game Holland and Lake will be Croydon's battery.

As this is the only game in this vicinity, a large crowd is anticipated.

BASEBALL TOMORROW

A baseball game is to be played tomorrow by the Newportville Fire Company on its home ground. An out-of-town team will oppose the fire-fighters.

it's wise to choose a SIX!

There is one sure way to get greater value in a low-priced car today—choose a Six!

This greater value is instantly obvious when you drive a Chevrolet Six. You notice first of all its greater smoothness. There is no tremor in the steering wheel—no rattle in the floor boards—no rumble or drumming in the body.

In addition to the finer performance of its six-cylinder motor, the new Chevrolet gives you truly remarkable economy.

Its six-cylinder smoothness saves the entire car from the strain and wear of vibration. This, of course, lowers the cost of maintenance and assures a longer-lasting, longer-satisfying automobile.

From the standpoint of operating expense, Chevrolet is equally economical. No other automobile consumes less gasoline and oil. No other shows a lower expense for tires. And no other car costs less for service.

Because of its modern engineering, Chevrolet also assures a high resale value.

Chevrolet gives you fully-enclosed, weather-proof, 4-wheel brakes; a modern fuel system—with the gasoline tank mounted in the rear; four long semi-elliptic springs, mounted lengthwise in the direction of car travel. It gives you beautiful Fisher bodies built of combination hardwood-and-steel. It gives you a heavy, rigidly-braced channel-steel frame. And it gives you a full ball bearing steering mechanism.

Before you decide on any car in the low-price field, see and drive the Chevrolet Six. The more thoroughly you investigate, the more certain you are to conclude that it's wise to choose a Six—for value, for performance... and for economical transportation!

The Obligation to Render Service

The comments of the public since the publication of the decision of the Public Service Commission denying the application of the Pennsylvania General Transit Company for permission to pick up and deliver through Philadelphia passengers in the territory which the local trolley company and the Delaware River Coach Company serve the public, have been indicative of public satisfaction with the decision.

In that decision the Commission says "there is undoubted inconvenience involved" in the changes of vehicles between here and Philadelphia. If that were the only matter to be considered the application of the Pennsylvania General Transit Company "might well be granted."

But, said the Commission, there was "an even greater counterbalancing inconvenience to the public" that would result from the granting of the application, and that was "total cessation of service on the trolley line."

So, in line with its clearly defined policy of preventing destructive competition between utilities and "wasteful duplication of services," the Commission took action which preserves to the people in this area the dependable transportation service which the local trolley and bus lines render.

Your local transportation companies are well aware of the obligation to render adequate service.

We are anxious to give service that will still further advance the prosperity of the territory in which we operate, that will add to the convenience of living here, that will make it easier for everybody to travel between the local communities, and that will in every way serve the best interest of the communities.

To that end we are making plans that will soon be announced. We shall give improved service. We make no extravagant promises, but we do assure the public that we are keenly appreciative of our obligation to render the best service that the patronage will support.
